FOURTH LECTURE ON AMERICAN PAINTING IS NOVEMBER 3

Mr. Lloyd Goodrich, Director of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York, will deliver the fourth of six lectures on American Painting this coming Wednesday evening, November 3 at 8:30 at The Cleveland Museum of Art. He will discuss REALISM AND ROMANTICISM IN HOMER, EAKINS, AND RYDER. Mr. Goodrich has published a book each on these three artists.

Mr. Goodrich was educated at the Art Students' League and at the National Academy of Design, both in New York City. He is director of the American Art Research Council and has a long list of memberships in various organizations including the editorial board for Art in America, the advisory committee on art for the White House, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Mr. Goodrich has written other books on artists and is co-author of AMERICAN ART OF OUR CENTURY (1961).

The lecture series is being sponsored by the Museum's Junior Council. Tickets may be purchased for $1.50.
